In computer science, a lookup table is an array that replaces runtime computation with a simpler array indexing operation. The savings in terms of processing time can be significant, since retrieving a value from memory is often faster than undergoing an "expensive" computation or input/output operation. The tables may be precalculated and stored in static program storage, calculated (or "pre ...

Raw data is the best data, but a lot of public data can still only be found in tables rather than as directly machine-readable files.One example is the FDIC's List of Failed Banks.Here is a simple trick to scrape such data from a website: Use Google Docs. The table on that page is even relatively nice because it includes some JavaScript to sort it.
